PREFACE

SCOPE. This year's Bibliography attempts to include, as did its predecessors, all works of professional interest pertaining to Russia and East Europe published in America or by Americans anywhere in the world during 1960. The Bibliography includes books and articles, but not book reviews, unless the review is substantial enough to be considered independently. Belles-lettres are included only in cases of scholarly or textbook editions. Republications are included only if the work has been long out of print or if the republication included a new introduction or if it is in some way revised so as to constitute a new work. "America" for the purposes of the Bibliography includes all the Americas, although the emphasis is on the United States and Canada; "Americans" include not only those who reside permanently in the Americas, but also those who were in residence during 1960. Unless otherwise noted all books and articles in this Bibliography were published in 1960.

ORGANIZATION AND USE OF THE BIBLIOGRAPHY. This year's Table of Contents has been expanded with new categories added to make the Bibliography easier to use. The Table of Contents should be considered a broad subject index including all sub-sections of the Bibliography. Items are grouped according to subject rather than a strict division by academic disciplines.

Items concerned with Anthropology and Archaeology and Geography, previously grouped together in one section, have been separated into two sections this year. The Political Science includes only government and internal politics. New sections of "Philosophy, Ideology and Intelligentsia" and "International Relations" have been added which include items previously grouped together under other sections. "International Relations" includes both economic and cultural policy overseas and what is more traditionally considered foreign policy. Sociology, previously included in various sections, has been included in the expanded section "Economics and Sociology." Items concerned with the history of a particular subject will generally be found under the subject heading, and not under the History section. Thus, the section on "Philosophy, Ideology and Intelligentsia" includes sub-sections on Intellectual History and the history of the intelligentsia; diplomatic history and the history of Russia's relations with other countries from 1917 to the present will be found under "International Relations"; and Economic History is to be found in the section "Economics and Sociology."

In the General and Social Science sections (I-X), items are alphabetically arranged in sub-sections by individual countries after consideration of the Soviet Bloc and East Europe as a whole and the Soviet Union. For the sections on the humanities (XI-XIII), classification is by language family, going from Slavic to Baltic, to other Indo-European, and ending with Non-Indo-European.

An individual article in a collection edited by a single scholar or group of scholars is in most cases listed separately; the number in square brackets [] refers to an item number in the Bibliography which is the volume in which the article appeared.

The list of abbreviations (pp. xiii-xv below) is a list of frequently cited publications that are abbreviated for convenience. It does not include all the magazines and journals for which there are entries in the Bibliography, nor does it mean that every article appearing in the journals listed has been included in the Bibliography.

The ingenuity of the bibliographer in creating useful sections and sub-sections is continually challenged by the ingenuity of the author in writing articles which defy simple classification. Therefore the Bibliography includes cross references. There are two types: first, cross references to those individual items which relate to the specific sub-section being used; and second, cross references to those other sections and sub-sections of the Bibliography which are of general relevance to the sub-section being used.

For Cyrillic the transliteration system used is that followed in The Slavic and East European Journal, Harvard Slavic Studies and Indiana Slavic Studies. Translations of titles are given only when this translation appears in the original item. Titles of items in English have been recorded in the exact form in which they appeared, even when the transliteration of foreign names and words departs from the system used. The technical style of the Bibliography follows that of the Annual Bibliography of the Publications of the Modern Language Association of America.

The Index lists the authors and editors of all items included in the Bibliography and the names of all persons mentioned in the titles of the items included. In the Index the common English rendition of a name is used. For example, Khrushchev and Chekov are used rather than Xruščev and Čexov.

FUTURE BIBLIOGRAPHIES. It is requested that scholars send to Mr. Viederman reprints, copies of publications and complete bibliographical information concerning their 1961 publications for inclusion, where appropriate, in the next Bibliography. This is particularly important for publications of Americans in foreign journals. Items published in 1960 which were inadvertently omitted from this year's Bibliography should also be sent to Mr. Viederman. Where appropriate they will be included in next year's Bibliography.

Comments concerning the changes made in this year's Bibliography would be appreciated, as would suggestions aimed at making future Bibliographies more useful.

COLLABORATORS. This Bibliography has been made possible by the co-operation of a committee of scholars, with the following areas of responsibility:

Anthropology: Dorothy Libby, Indiana University

Geography: Norman J. G. Pounds and Robert N. Taaffe, Indiana University

Law: Serge L. Levitsky, Fordham University

Linguistics and Literature:

Slavic in Canada: J. B. Rudnycky, University of Manitoba
Russian and Polish: Zbigniew Folejewski, University of Wisconsin

Ukrainian: J. B. Rudycky and Andrew Turchyn, Indiana
University

Other Slavic and Baltic: Morton Benson, University of Pennsylvania

Yiddish: Edward Stankiewicz, University of Chicago

Folklore: Felix Oinas, Indiana University

Philosophy and Religion: George L. Kline, Bryn Mawr College

The Editors are responsible for the remainder of the areas covered in the Bibliography.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS. The Editors acknowledge with gratitude the support of the Indiana University Russian and East European Institute and the Editorial Committee of the Graduate School Russian and East European Series, who made possible the compiling and publication of this Bibliography. They would also like to thank each of the collaborators, and Professor George Winchester Stone, Jr., Executive Secretary of the Modern Language Association of America, for making it possible to include the listings which have already appeared in the PMLA "1960 Annual Bibliography." In addition, the committee would like to express thanks to those members of the profession who sent journals, books, reprints of articles, and bibliographical data for inclusion, and to Thomas J. Noonan of Indiana University who provided invaluable assistance. Thanks are also due to Mrs. Carolyn Camp who compiled the Index. Mr. Shaw was responsible for the accumulation of materials; Messrs. Todd and Viederman were responsible for the classification of the items, the general organization of the Bibliography and for seeing it through the press.

The Editors wish to acknowledge the contribution of Mr. Felix Oinas. In addition to collecting materials for the Folklore section, Mr. Oinas offered invaluable assistance in classifying the Linguistics and Literature sections.

With this year's Bibliography Mr. Shaw ends his editorial association with the Annual Bibliography. He has had the difficult task of seeing it through birth and successful development to date. For his efforts and achievements he deserves the respect and gratitude of all his colleagues.
